

Why Daylight Matters in Behavioral Health Environments

Natural daylight has been shown to positively influence patient well-being, helping create calmer, healthier, and more supportive care settings.

866-412-6977

info@isoclimasg.com

www.isoclimagroup.com

500 Grant Ave.
East Butler, PA 16029

Behavioral Health Glazing

Designed to enhance safety while supporting healing environments through daylight and visibility.

Improved Patient Well-Being

Mood improvement, stress reduction, reduced agitation, improved sleep quality.

Enhanced Recovery

Faster healing, reduced length of stay, improved pain management.

Greater Safety & Orientation

Better cognitive function, enhanced orientation, lower risk of falls.

Better Staff & Facility Outcomes

Improved social interaction, increased productivity, higher patient satisfaction.

Behavioral Health-Ready

PSYCH-2118 combines security performance and daylighting benefits to support safer, more therapeutic environments.

- Supports safer patient environments
- Maintains access to natural daylight
- Helps reduce agitation and stress
- Designed specifically for behavioral health applications
- Forced-entry resistant construction

Learn more about
Behavioral Health
Glazing >>

